Implementing Seamless Reentry through stakeholder collaboration and continuous improvement

Prisoner reentry is the process by which prisoners who have been released return to the community. Seamless reentry is an effective combination of services and resources that remove barriers and hurdles preventing returning citizens from succeeding as productive and contributing members of society. Many types of programs have been implemented with the goal of reducing recidivism; from 2001 to 2004, the federal government allocated over $100 million for reentry programs.

"the Task Force envisions a statewide comprehensive and evidenced-based Reentry Initiative that involves multiple stakeholders, including state and county corrections, law enforcement, social service government agencies, non-profit service providers, faith-based organizations, and the families of those incarcerated."
